Our President Speaks

At the October meeting of our society, Dr Kurt Wegner gave a very detailed report of the plans of his committee on the mass Sabin polio immunization for our county. It met the unanimous approval of our society members that attended the meeting.

The tremendous amount of work involved in planning for a successful venture of this type is still ahead of us. If any program needed the utmost cooperation of our society members and our auxiliary—this one has priority double A.

Effort and time by each and every one of us is the essence in making this program a success. I am sure that the backing of Dr. Wegner and his committee on this important community service will be one of action and not words.

The oral vaccine developed by Dr. Albert Sabin, professor of research pediatrics at the University of Cincinnati Medical School may eventually eradicate wild polio virus from our community.

According to the Council of Drugs of the A.M.A. such programs to be successful will require the active cooperation of various community organizations and agencies in addition to organized medicine—public health agencies, hospitals, pharmacists, etc.

* * * * *

November, as we all know is the month that we again screen our county citizens for diabetes mellitus. November 12, to the 18th, is Diabetes week. This program of our society has always unearthed diabetic cases that would otherwise be unknown till complications became evident.

Diabetes Week is an effort of the entire medical society, and deserves the full cooperation of all members.

A Happy Thanksgiving to all of you and yours!

CONSERVATISM

Recently I was asked by the Society, at a rather late date, to talk to a prominent Youngstown woman's group on the Kennedy-King version of medical care for the aged.

My immediate mental reaction after being asked to do this chore was an instantaneous "No". How could I give such a speech at two o'clock in the afternoon during office hours and on short notice at that, what with a grueling practice and other responsible activities. Feeling sorry for myself! Yep. Fed up? Possibly. Lazy? Well!

But I recovered, shook off my apathetic "Let George do it" attitude, and told the doctor who called me that I would make the talk. This was an important group of people and they wanted a doctor to talk to them.

Medical speakers on the subject, medical care for the aged, even poor ones, are hard to come by, and here was an opportunity for one doctor to present the position of medicine to a large number of women. In fact, I said I was glad for the opportunity. I had been writing about medical care for the aged and discussing it over the radio during the past year. Now I could say my piece to a live audience, obtain a reaction, and perhaps even get some training in speaking to a lay audience on a controversial subject.

When I was introduced to the program chairman prior to giving the speech, she told me that the audience was a mixed socioeconomic group—some of the woman favored the Social Security approach to medical care for the aged and others did not. She also stated that she felt this mixed feeling prevailed among those over 65 as well.

I devoted the first twenty minutes of my talk to a prepared format giving it as spontaneously and informally as I could. It was as factual and concise as I could make it and I felt well received. The second twenty minutes was devoted to questions from the audience and it was the questions from these people, many of whom were over 65, that was most enlightening to me.

To my amazement the majority of these women could not see the actual need for the Kennedy-King bill. Essentially they appeared to be wary of Socialism by this back door route or by any other route for that matter, and were concerned regarding the abuses and the tax cost of the welfare state. As in most question and answer discussions we drifted somewhat far afield, in this instance economically. One woman was alarmed that our present government administration had done little or no belt tightening in the domestic area of our economy despite the fact that our defense budget needed to be increased, and with our national debt a staggering sum of nearly three hundred billion dollars. Amen! How does one answer this type of inquiry? I admitted that I too was fiscally shocked. I suggested that this was something she should tell her congressman and senators.

This group was relatively small, well educated, and may be no index of across-the-country sentiment, but I was surprised and pleased by the intelligent, realistic discussion of these people.

Actually, I believe there is a ground swell of conservatism across our land and the old political hacksters with their motto of spend, spend, tax, tax, may be in for a rude awakening and some very rough handling in the forthcoming elections. While at times it may not seem to be so, I believe there is truly a strong, conservative free enterprise philosophy ingrained in most of our people. Perhaps it needs to be prodded and awakened, but it's there. It's freedom, really, and it will be preserved.

SOCIETY ENDORSES POLIO PROGRAM

The Mahoning County Medical Society voted to undertake a polio mass immunization program for Mahoning County at the Oct. 17 meeting of the society.

Following a showing of the polio film, "The Next Step," Dr. Kurt Wegner, chairman of the polio committee outlined a plan for the immunization program. After an extensive question and answer period, the following council-sponsored resolution was passed: that the Mahoning County Medical Society sponsor an oral polio mass immunization and that the society underwrite the cost of the program and charge a minimal fee to cover the cost of the program to those who can pay, with no charge to those who cannot pay.

One hundred and five persons attended the meeting, of which thirty-six were members of the Woman's Auxiliary. Mrs. Frank Inui, president, spoke for the Auxiliary. Dr. A. K. Phillips, president, presided.

on METICORTEN, he has worked steadily for six years with no serious side effects

J. G.'s rheumatoid arthritis started in 1949 with severe and unremitting pain in his shoulders. Later, his wrists, elbows, feet and hands became involved with swelling and loss of function. By 1951, when he was 45, the patient was helpless and had to be fed and dressed by his wife. He was frequently hospitalized during the next three years. Hydrocortisone failed to make any change in his condition.

On April 2, 1955, the patient was placed on METICORTEN and improved promptly. Two weeks later he stated, "I feel very well now." He was able to go back to work as a mine electrician that year and had no difficulty driving a car.

For the past six years, he has been maintained on METICORTEN 5 mg. two or three times a day. There have been no side effects. The patient has not lost any work time, nor has he had to limit his activities in any way.

Panalba* promptly to gain precious therapeutic hours

In the presence of bacterial infection, taking a culture to determine bacterial identity and sensitivity is desirable—but not always practical.

A rational clinical alternative is to launch therapy at once with Panalba, the antibiotic that provides the best odds for success.

Panalba is effective (in vitro) against 30 common pathogens, including the ubiquitous staph. Use of Panalba from the outset (even pending laboratory results) can gain precious hours of effective antibiotic treatment.

SUPPLIED: Capsules, each containing Panmycin* Phosphate (tetracycline phosphate complex), equivalent to 250 mg. tetracycline hydrochloride, and 125 mg. Albamycin,* as novobiocin sodium, in bottles of 16 and 100. USUAL ADULT DOSAGE: 1 or 2 capsules 3 or 4 times a day.

SIDE EFFECTS: Panmycin Phosphate has a very low order of toxicity comparable to that of the other tetracyclines and is well tolerated clinically. Side reactions to therapeutic use are infrequent and consist principally of mild nausea and abdominal cramps. Albamycin also has a relatively low order of toxicity. In a certain few patients, a yellow pigment has been found in the plasma. This pigment, apparently a metabolic by-product of the drug, is not necessarily associated with abnormal liver function tests or liver enlargement.

Urticaria and maculopapular dermatitis, and a few cases of leukopenia have been reported in patients treated with Albamycin. These side effects usually disappear upon discontinuance of the drug.

CAUTION: Since the use of any antibiotic may result in overgrowth of nonsusceptible organisms, constant observation of the patients is essential. If new infections appear during therapy, appropriate measures should be taken.

Total and differential blood counts should be made routinely during prolonged administration of Albamycin. The possibility of liver damage should be considered if a yellow pigment, a metabolic by-product of Albamycin, appears in the plasma. Panalba should be discontinued if allergic reactions that are not readily controlled by antihistaminic agents develop.

DR. HENRY MANNING, PIONEER PHYSICIAN*Second In a Series of Historical Sketches of Youngstown Physicians*

Of all the doctors who were attracted to the Western Reserve in the early 19th century, Henry Manning was the most outstanding. Starting from scratch with no money and few friends but with great ambition and natural ability he became a beloved physician and a leader in public affairs. He was in everything in this growing settlement. No project was complete without him. Schools, finance, politics and war all occupied his attention, and in everything he was successful. He left an imprint on Youngstown History that few modern doctors absorbed in medical practice can hope to equal.

Why this ambitious young man came to Youngstown is obvious. There was a great movement then of settlers from Connecticut to the Western Reserve and Youngstown with its 300 people was its largest settlement. It was the first to be laid out with streets and lots, a central square and a burying ground, all proper just like New England. John Young and his surveyor had taken care of that. Larger than Cleveland or Cincinnati, larger even than Marietta down on the Ohio River which was then known as Campus Martius, the first settlement in Ohio.

The Reserve belonged to Connecticut by a grant from the King in colonial days and only after long litigation and a small war with Pennsylvania was its title established. The Connecticut Land Company was promoting emigration to the new possession to cement its hold on the lands in the West.

Beside that, Henry Manning had taught school in Connecticut before he apprenticed himself to Dr. Crawford to learn the art and practice of medicine. He never went to medical college although there were such in Philadelphia and Boston. Most of the doctors of his day entered the profession by studying for a year or two with older physicians. And his kin, Jabez Manning was teaching school in a log cabin on Central Square in Youngstown.

So young Henry Manning arrived here in 1811 to be a practitioner of medicine and surgery. Of course he stayed at the house of Col. Wm. Rayen at Spring Common. It was the largest house in town with many rooms and a log lean-to on the back where the kitchen was and it was known as Rayen's Tavern. All the newcomers stopped there. Col. Rayen was the man to see. He knew everybody, he had land to sell and could get the new doctor started. He introduced young Manning to the Hillmans, the Wicks, the Brysons and to Dr. Dutton.

Dr. Charles Dutton was the only physician here for ten years and what he thought of the new arrival is problematical. He should have been glad to have some help, but in those days older doctors viewed new arrivals with some hostility. They were as different as day and night. Dr. Dutton was rough and ready, loud and opinionated; Manning was conservative, quiet and scholarly, the school teacher type. In fact, he taught school the first year while waiting for patients to appear.

Dr. Dutton had little to worry about because Henry Manning was scarcely settled when the war of 1812 broke out and there was tremendous excitement. General Harrison had won the battle of Tippecanoe and made the Ohio Territory safe from Indian raids but now the British were storming the east coast and were coming down from Canada trying to win back their lost colonies.

The Reserve was called upon to raise a regiment of volunteers and there was a great rendezvous in Youngstown from Poland, Struthers, Boardman and Canfield. There was a fife and drum corps marching around Central Square, patriotic speeches, flags flying and 100 men were enlisted. Col. Wm. Rayen was in command and Dr. Henry Manning was the regimental surgeon. When they marched away there were only eight men left in Youngstown.

Surgeon Manning distinguished himself during the war, though not by military standards. He spent most of his time in camp at Cleveland, Sandusky and Huron where he found much sickness. He was so devoted to the care of the men in his regiment that when he came back home he found his fame had preceded him. After that he never lacked patients.

There are times that call for willing men. There are wants to be met, there are voids to be filled and such there were in 1814 after the war. Henry Manning came back with a great reputation for his care of the sick of his regiment. His success as a physician was assured. He was prominent and busy, wise in practice and astute in business. There was no drugstore in Youngstown so he and Caleb Wick started one.

As the money poured in ($1.00 for a house call, 50 cents for the office and $5.00 for childbirth) he was able to buy a farm in Brier Hill where Worthington Street is now. It extended clear down to the Mahoning River in the River Bend Area (known as the Monkey's Nest). He bought land west of Mill Creek extending from the Mahoning River clear up to the Bear's Den Road. His purchases were very fortunate, or perhaps far sighted.

When the first iron furnace was built in Brier Hill they had to buy land from Dr. Manning. Coal was discovered on his land up in the Bear's Den area and it was needed for the furnaces. In lieu of money they made him a partner in the venture with a royalty of one-half cent per bushel, not by ton but by the bushel. Coal was dug out by pick and shovel those days. If you start today at the Bear's Den Cabin in Mill Creek Park and walk up the trail along Bear's Den Run you can see some of the old track that carried coal from his mine. The shafts were filled in long ago for safety but the track can still be seen.

In 1843 he was elected representative to the state legislature and later became state senator serving until 1846. Between visits to Columbus he practiced medicine and was said to be a skillful surgeon. He performed the first cataract operation in Ohio. After his service in the legislature he devoted more time to local affairs and was elected the first president of the Board of Education in 1851. His comment on the school teachers of the time is still preserved: "If a man could read tolerably well, was a good writer, could cypher as far as the rule of three, knew how to use the birch scientifically and had firmness enough to use his skill, he would pass muster."

Youngstown was growing and had about 1200 inhabitants. The union of coal and ore had produced three furnaces for the smelting of iron. Besides, coal was being shipped to Cleveland for steamboat fuel. Money was pouring in and a bank was needed. The Mahoning County Bank was formed with the substantial, conservative, astute Dr. Manning as President. When the new law of 1863 was passed it became the First National Bank, the third to be chartered in the United States. It is now the Union National Bank and Dr. Manning was its first President.

In his late years he was elected Mayor of Youngstown but served only a short time because of illness. He died in 1869 after 50 years service in Youngstown as doctor, law maker, merchant and chief. How one quiet, scholarly man could do so much is a remarkable thing. He was willing to do what was needed to be done. He was capable and honest and everyone trusted him. No one remembers any harsh or unkind thing he ever did.

Of his three sons, William became Vice-President of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company, Henry ran the drugstore and Rufus served in the Army during the Civil War. His four daughters all taught school before they married. Many of his descendants still live here and recall with pride their ancestor, the doctor who did so much for Youngstown.

"HOW TO PROFIT THROUGH TAX EXEMPTION"

One phase of the security market which I'm afraid has been overlooked by many individuals who should, in fairness to themselves be exploring it, is in the area of Municipal Bonds. Under today's present income tax structure it behooves each of us to consider ways by which we can increase our "take-home pay."

Under present tax laws, the government claims a substantial portion, not only of our earnings, but that income derived from corporate and government bonds, equity investments, savings accounts, and other such investments as well. A fact which many professional people ignore is that one half of our taxable income between $16,000 and $18,000 is taxed away. This fact reduces a 3% yield on most investments to 1½%. For those with taxable incomes over $44,000, investment returns are reduced as much as 91%.

The only way by which we can retain the lion's share of our income from investments, is through the use of tax-exempt securities, which unfortunately and unnecessarily is an unfamiliar and mysterious aspect of the investment world.

We are all familiar with the securities of General Motors, United States Steel, or Standard Oil of New Jersey. On the other hand how many of us know the reputation or quality of the bonds of such cities as New York, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, or bonds of the Ohio Turnpike Commission? Until recently only the institutional buyer (banks, insurance companies, etc.) had bothered to inform themselves about such securities. Today, however, with personal income taxes confiscatory in scope it has compelled us to search for ways through which we can protect and maintain our incomes from investments for ourselves.

Tax exemption means that the income from the bonds of states, counties, cities, towns and other municipal subdivisions is totally exempt from all Federal Income Tax. You need not even declare it on your annual tax return. These bonds are, however, subject to local state income taxes except to residents of the state of issue.

To those of us who reside in Ohio, where there is no State Income Tax, there is no problem which bonds we hold or where the issuer is located so far as income taxes are concerned.

Many individuals have asked to have this exemption from Federal Income Tax converted to dollars and cents in order that they can evaluate the savings to themselves. It can best be explained by giving an example. Assume an individual with a net taxable income of $48,000. The current tax on the top portion is approximately 72%. If the top $3,600 of this taxable income was from a 3% taxable yield he would have only $1,008 to keep after paying his taxes. Putting it another way he would have to obtain a taxable yield of 10.71% in order to keep this $3,600. This type of yield is difficult to find without involving real risk. Needless to say this advantage is a graduated thing and becomes more and more attractive the higher the income. It is, however, of very real value with taxable incomes commencing as low as $10,000.

There are many varieties of Municipal Bonds as well as different ratings as to their quality so that it behooves the potential buyer to seek professional help who has daily contact with this phase of the securities business prior to making his decision.

Dear Fellow Physician:

The deans and administrators of all our medical schools are faced with a three-fold challenge: to constantly maintain the present high standards of medical education—to incorporate into existing curricula the multitude of advancements achieved annually in the field of medicine—and to expand the student capacity to meet the physician requirements of an "exploding population."

A very important way for you to be of direct assistance to the deans is to make a contribution to the American Medical Education Foundation.

Since its founding it has channeled over 10 million dollars to the medical schools for unrestricted purposes. The A.M.E.F. has become the symbol of organized medicine's endorsement of medical education, and now more than ever it is important that we continue this effort.

The purpose of the A.M.E.F. and the needs of the medical schools are greater now as the Foundation begins its second decade than ever before.

It is a challenge for all of us—let's meet it with a check today! There is no better way to invest in the future of medicine

Sincerely yours,
Louis Bloomberg, Chairman
A.M.E.F. Committee

Make out your check to: The American Medical Education Foundation. Indicate whether it is to go into the general fund and be divided among all medical schools, or earmarked for a particular school. Mail it to: American Medical Education Foundation, 535 North Dearborn Street, Chicago 10, Illinois.

Dr. A. K. Phillips, President:

I express to you my sincere thanks for this plaque and although it has been presented to me, it also belongs to Radio Station WFMJ, and to all the other members of our staff who have made "Diagnosis" the really unique program, I think it is. We are honored to be recognized by the area's most respected professional group, and the awarding of these plaques, I think you will agree, is a milestone in the history of your Society. Not too long ago, members of the medical profession looked with suspicion on members of the press; (and I use the word press to cover radio and television, as well as newspapers) but now, I think, we all realize, while you have an obligation to keep the public informed through the press, these channels of communication can be extremely useful to you. This is especially true now when non-professionals are trying to legislate the manner in which you will conduct your affairs with your patients.

I recommend to you, (with one minor exception), the letter which appears in the September issue of your Society's bulletin, written by one of your honored guests, Esther Hamilton. (I'm sure Esther will forgive me for noting that we regard WFMJ and WFMJ-TV as also being true avenues of news.) However, this letter says what each of us would say.

Finally, I offer my thanks to Doctor John McDonough, who arranged every Diagnosis program, and to each of you who has appeared on the program. You have helped us fulfill our obligation to our audience, and we offer our help to you.

—Mitchell Stanley

Youngstown was well represented at the meeting of the American Heart Association in Miami with Drs. Bennett, Bunn, Halmos, Saadi and Tiberio in attendance.

WEDDING BELLS: Dr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Sofranec, Jr. announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Patricia Jean to MISCELLANY: Recent visitors to Youngstown were Dr. and Mrs. Wendell Bennett of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Dr. Bennett was on the Staff of Youngstown Hospital for many years before his retirement. Dr. Fred Schellhase attended meetings of the American Lutheran Board of Theological Education in Chicago. Following this he attended the regional meeting of the American College of Surgeons. He then went to Canada for a weeks vacation.

SHARPS AND FLATS: The student nurses of Youngstown Hospital recently held a "Frolic." There were some dulcet tones heard there. It seems that there are some hidden talents in the profession! There is an orchestra in the area called the Pathogenic Five (since there are now six members it is referred to as Pathogenic Five plus one.) Dr. Paxton Jones plays on the skins, Dr. David Beynon works on the slush pump (I always thought little David played on the harp), Dr. J. H. Fulks tickles the ivories and Dr. Alfred Mangie plays the squeeze box. Two more compose the group. Dr. Altier of Niles is adept with the licorice stick and Mr. Lou Heyer of Dunning-Crum slaps the Bull Fiddle. It seems to me that a good addition to one of the MCMS meetings would be some syncopation by the Pathogenic Five plus one. Send your requests to the executive secretary.

A PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE REPORT ON THE STATUS OF SYPHILIS CONTROL

For ten years now, infectious syphilis has been among the easiest diseases both to diagnosis and to treat. Yet today, syphilis poses as great a menace to health in the United States as it ever did; and it appears to be approaching the outer limits of control.

It seems incongruous that in this enlightened age, it is costing $50,000,000 to care for just the syphilitic insane in tax-supported mental institutions only.

An all-time low for reported cases of new, infectious syphilis was hit in fiscal year 1957 when only 6,250 cases of primary and secondary syphilis were reported. (Syphilis is considered infectious for approximately six months after it is acquired. The fiscal year for reporting of infectious diseases to the Public Health Service is July 1 to June 30.) In 1958, the total of infectious syphilis cases reported was 6,660. In 1959, it rose to more than 8,000, and in fiscal 1960 to 12,470.

This trend apparently has continued, and it is probable that for the year ending June 30, 1961, between 18,000 and 23,000 such cases will have been reported. About half of these cases are occurring in the 15-24 year age group.

Increases are being reported from all parts of the country, and are not confined to areas of intensified program activity. Increases are also being reported at all social levels. (For example, one recent syphilis epidemic involved almost 50 persons each of whom was in the five-figure annual income bracket.)

There are perhaps three general reasons for the increase.

1. A more mobile population. This is reflected in the fact that at least one out of every four infectious syphilis patients has had one or more out-of-state sexual contacts. Moreover, it is not unusual for a single patient to have had sexual contacts in several states and several foreign countries. The highest percentage of reactive blood tests for syphilis recently have been found among domestic migrant workers; and 24 states reported recently that migrant workers pose special venereal disease control problems.

2. Rapid urbanization. Urban populations have tended to boom faster than constructive social, cultural, and health-related institutions, such as schools, churches, adequate housing, wholesome recreational facilities, physicians and venereal disease control facilities. This is reflected in the fact, for example, that New York City, with 4.4 percent of the nation's population reports 16.8 percent of the nation's infectious syphilis. Moreover, 10 large cities with 11.4 percent of the nation's population report 44.8 percent of the nation's infectious syphilis.

3. Failure to halt the spread of infection because of inadequate epidemiology. Although an increasing number of private practitioners are becoming aware of the renewed threat of syphilis and are making an effort to contribute to its control, a principal missing link has been and still is the private physician. Because the medical profession as well as the public has become so desensitized to the threat of syphilis, many infectious cases are missed simply because a diagnosis of syphilis in many instances seems like a very remote possibility bordering on the incredible. Moreover, although every state has laws requiring the reporting of infectious disease diagnosed, studies show that private physicians are reporting only one out of every four cases which they do diagnose. Furthermore, to halt the spread of syphilis infection, it is necessary to interview each infectious patient confidentially and trace his sexual contacts for the previous six months, arranging for them to be examined and, if infected, treated. This process is almost unbelievably time-consuming, and no private practitioner could possibly afford to do it. To meet this need, public health epidemiologists have been specially trained to carry out this function; and their services have been offered to private physicians throughout the country. However, only in a relatively few areas are these experts allowed access to to any significant proportion of privately treated patients.

The Public Health Service believes that the only hope for syphilis eradication lies in increased cooperation between private practitioners and public health epidemiologists.

Health Commissioner

COLORADO'S MEDICAL-CARE-FOR-THE-AGED WOES

"So goes Colorado, so goes the nation" may be the new cry in the all-important field of medical care for the aged. As reported in the Wall Street Journal, the Colorado program, widely heralded three years ago, has run into bad trouble. Other states are watching the situation closely as a means of avoiding the same pitfalls.

Colorado provides $10,000,000 a year for their aged program. This year, the program faced a $1,400,000 deficit. Even after drastic cut-backs in the program, a $600,000 deficit is expected.

The reason for the program bogging-down is two-fold: Rising hospital and medical costs, and gross misuse of the facilities provided in the plan. Hospital costs have risen 8 percent each year that the program has been in force.

Misuse of the plan includes such instances as lonely ladies who go to the hospital as often as possible for free food and company; couples who use the hospital as a baby-sitter for their parents whenever they need one; and doctors who send patients to the hospital because it is easier to call on them there than to travel all over the country-side making house calls.

Doctors are bitter about being on the spot in the matter of keeping persons out of the hospital, especially where it affects patients of long standing. They are well aware that all the patients need to do is shop around until they find a physician who will put them in the hospital.

Now even the pensioners are critical of the program, calling it "almost useless" in its present cut-back form.

New Mexico, following closely on the trail of Colorado, initiated cut-backs in its program on March 1. North Dakota, with a program that was due to go into effect on July 1, is one of the closest observers of the Colorado difficulty.

For those who are following the progress of S. B. 550, a second article, extremely comprehensive, has appeared in the Ohio State Medical Journal for October. Read it on page 1152. The A.M.A. News summarizes the new law in the October 16 issue, page 14.

POSTGRADUATE DAY

A mass migration of the Mahoning County Medical Society was much in evidence on October 25. The destination was Canton, Ohio; the reason, Postgraduate Day Assembly. Each assembly seems to surpass previous ones. This one was no exception! Your associate editor, who makes frequent trips via the Canton Expressway to Granville, was carried away and forgot to turn off at Market Avenue. Dr. Massullo, who happened to be following, continued to follow like an obedient sheep. Fortunately after a few quick maneuvers and deceptions by the leader we all managed to arrive at our destination.

The usual exhibitors had their display booths set up and there were a few new ones. Hoyt McAllister is no longer selling baby milk but is now selling insurance. His company, Western Reserve Life Insurance Company donated a Polaroid Land Camera and a tripod. This was won by Dr. Ranchod, a medical resident at St. Elizabeth's. Kenneth A. Manne Laboratories gave away a transistor tape recorder which was won by a Dr. Kim who is an interne at Aultman Hospital in Canton. Bowman Brothers had a pill manufacturing machine pressing out peppermint candy "pills" and there was much pill dispensing to doubting colleagues. Bowman Brothers also sponsored the reception. Lyons, as usual, had a suite where liquid cheer was being dispensed.

There were many excellent papers and panel discussions presented. Dr. George Hamwi, the president-elect of the Ohio State Medical Association, was the moderator of a panel on Diseases of the Thyroid. He is another Dr. Zollinger, quick, sharp, dynamic and effective.

The Womans Auxiliary also had a full day. A luncheon meeting was arranged at the Hotel Belden. The featured guest and speaker was John H. Noble of Detroit. He gave them much food for serious thought. At the end of World War II, while serving as a member of the U.S. Armed Forces, he was captured and falsely arrested by the Russians. He was a Soviet prisoner for over nine years. His address, "I was a Slave in Russia" has received national acclaim. Shopping in many of Canton's stores was on the agenda for many of the ladies. Frequently a wife could be seen whispering to her husband and then he would reach into his wallet and there would be a transfer of some currency. (Who said the total cost of the Assembly was ten Dollars?) I understand that there were many new charge accounts opened in Canton.

The highpoint of Postgraduate Day was the banquet. Those that were unable to attend missed an inspiring oration. The speaker, as you all have heard by this time, was Dr. Edward R. Annis, a practicing surgeon, of Miami, Florida. Many of you have seen him on television. His debates with Walter Reuther and Senator Humphries were not unlike those of Lincoln and Douglas. The facts were presented with ease and clarity which left the listener with no doubt as the correct road to take. If all physicians could and would speak as he does there would be no socialized medicine, no not even any socialism in these United States of America. The speech has been recorded on tape and it is hoped that some or all of it can be presented at a future meeting of the Mahoning County Medical Society.

The following is a list of the men in attendance. If any names have been omitted please accept our apologies. The men listed are members of the house staffs of St. Elizabeth's and Youngstown Hospitals as well as members of the Mahoning County Medical Society. Drs. Acki, Brennan, Bowling, Baumblatt, Burrowes, R. A. Brown, Cestone, Caccamo, Clifford, DeCicco, Detesco, DuBois, Davies, Dyck, Doan, Dennis, Evans, Friedrich, Firestone, Falletta,

Finley, Franklin, Heaver, Hixon, Hremos, Ipp, Inui, Johnson, Jenkins, LaManna, Levy, Mahar, Mack, McGregor, McDonough, Pichette, Parry, Raupple, Ruiz, Ribbari, Schreiber, Saadi, Schlecht, H. SEMINAR UNDER WAY

It's not too late to sign up for the 1961-62 edition of the physicians cultural seminar. The seminar got off to a good start on Thursday, Nov. 9, with Professor Victor M. Blanco of Warner and Swasey Observatory in Cleveland lecturing on "Evolution of the Cosmos."

The next seminar will be "Evolution of the Earth," with Michael Klasovsky, Chairman of the Department of Geography of Youngstown University, on Thursday, Nov. 16.

To register for the next 13 seminars, send a check to the Mahoning County Medical Society office. The cost is $15.00 single, and $25.00 per couple.

WIFE LINE

The Kennedy Bill vs Free Medicine was the topic for discussion at the September meeting of the Medical Auxiliary. The panelists, Janice Brody, Betty Gross and Pat Cestone deserve a pat on the back for a job well done. This discussion was good background for the men's meeting when we joined them at the Mural Room to hear the views of Marjorie Shearon—Thank you, gentlemen for a delightful evening.

Tuesday, October 17th gave us another opportunity to enjoy the company of our husbands when we attended their meeting to learn about the Sabin oral polio vaccine. The medical society will call upon the Auxiliary for assistance in distributing this vaccine. Girls! If you receive a call asking for your help, please remember our Auxiliary exists for the purpose of helping the medical society, so please say yes.

MEDICAL ASSISTANTS VISIT UPJOHN

It was really a very gay and interesting experience. Miss Dorothy Klein, Program Chairman, chartered a bus for 36 Mahoning County Medical Assistants, and they were guests of the Upjohn Company, Kalamazoo, Michigan, for 3 days. (Oct. 12, 13, and 14.)

QUICK FACTS ABOUT O.M.I.

Insurance companies are guided by fundamental rules almost as irrevocable and immutable as the laws of the universe. Decisions by insurance companies to abrogate these rules and principles have usually ended in disaster. Contracts, the most conspicuous part of the insurance operation, agree that the insurance companies will come to the aid of the insured when an event or occurrence described in the contract takes place.

There are six fundamental criteria which serve as guide lines to insurance companies, and are as follows:

1. It must conform to the laws of mathematical probability.
2. There must be an insurable interest.
3. There must be a large number of independent risks.
4. There must be an uncertainty of occurrence.
5. Insurance itself must not immeasurably increase the risk.
6. The risk must be measurable.
